TO THE HONORABLE PRESIDENT AND MEMBERS OF THE CITY—COUNTY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF INDIANAPOLIS AND MARION COUNTY, INDIANA:

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Attached please find a communication from the Mayor of Stuttgart, Germany, Dr. Manfred Rommel, in which he politely declines to accept our invitation to establish a sister-city relationship between Indianapolis and Stuttgart. I thought you might like to have this for your records in view of the resolution you adopted earlier this year which I personally delivered to him on October 25, 1982.

Sincerely yours,

s/William H. Hudnut, III
MAYOR

Dear Mayor Hudnut,

I wish to thank you for your kind letter dated 4 November 1982 and for your good wishes on the occasion of my re-election. With almost 70% of the votes the result has turned out better than I had expected myself.

The City Council of the City of Stuttgart wishes to express its appreciation for the generous invitation to establish a formal sister city relationship between Stuttgart and Indianapolis. We are truly honored by the resolution of the City Council of the City of Indianapolis. I regret all the more to have to inform you that the council of elders of our city has decided to maintain its previous policy which is not to enter any new sister city relationships. You may be aware that since 1960 Stuttgart and St. Louis have been linked by a sister city relationship into which we have been able to put life despite the great distance between our two cities. Altogether we have 7 sister cities. If any more were to be added, I am afraid we would fail to fulfill the expectation of our new partner, not being able to cultivate those newly established links as it should be. For a relationship between two cities to really be functioning and to benefit all the citizens, there has to be more than just an official document. Notwithstanding the fact that we don't see any possibility to establish a formal relationship with your city at this point, we are willing to entertain and further friendly relations between our two cities.

Thank you very much for your kind invitation to visit your city. For the time being, however, I am afraid that I won't be able to accept because of my busy schedule.

I would consider it a personal pleasure to welcome you again at Stuttgart's City Hall some day in the future and remain,

Sincerely,

Manfred Rommel

STATEMENT BY ROZELLE BOYD TO THE INDIANAPOLIS
CITY—COUNTY COUNCIL ON JANUARY 10, 1983

A few weeks ago I introduced into the deliberations of this Council a resolution which was entitled, "A Resolution In Support Of The Retention Of The Cabinet-Level Department Of Education." Though considerably more comprehensive and understandable than the majority of resolutions which are presented to the Council one evening and passed during the same evening, this resolution was referred to the Rules and Policy Committee for review and recommendation. The rather shallow discussion which occurred in the Rules and Policy Committee gave quick indication that the resolution had been barely read and not even barely understood. Let me hasten to add that on this Council this lack of understanding flows from a Republican attitude and near inability to view objectively Democratic initiatives of substance.

The almost predictable recommendation of the Rules and Policy Committee was that the resolution be defeated when it was referred back to the floor of the Council. The resolution was indeed returned to the full Council with a do not pass recommendation and, after some brief perfunctory discussion, was defeated. One index as to how closely the discussion approached absurdity was the suggestion made by one Republican Councillor that we discard the documentable policy positions of professional education groups representing many thousands of people and replace those positions with attitudes which the Councillor allegedly received from casual conversations with a few unidentifiable local educators.

Another index observation made by a Republican Councillor was that because there seemed to be no strong administrative efforts directed toward the elimination of the Department of Education there would seem to be no need to address the concern. The Councillor had either not read or chose to ignore the resolution "whereas" which clearly stated that the Department was suffering from a lack of committed leadership and planning precisely because of its limbo circumstance. There were several other indications that the Republican majority had made up its mind to vote against the resolution and to not be persuaded one way or another in terms of any criteria of reasonableness. The vote was a party line vote.

Those citizens who are not as sensitive (nor expected to be) to party identity would have taken a look at the preponderance of votes against the resolution and would have assessed the effort as having been ill-conceived. They would (or did) read the vote as being representative of a very broad attitude. They might have followed their logic and assumed that the Council was a real microcosm of the larger society. I reference this whole situation at this time because there will be few other occasions in which the contradiction is so graphic and so close in terms of the flow of events.

During this past fall one of the standing committees of the National League of Cities formally discussed the role of education generally and the role of the Department of Education specifically as they relate to the quality of life in our country and the continuing availability of a well-trained work force. The committee never lost its focus on the urban impact. Partially as a result of this discussion I wrote a resolution (essentially the same one presented for the action of this Council) which was circulated to the chairman and members of the Human Development Steering Committee and to members of the NLC staff. During the last meeting of the full two hundred plus member Policy Committee the resolution was passed and forwarded on to the very representative NLC Resolutions Committee. The Resolutions Committee discussed and passed the resolution and then forwarded it on to the Delegate Assembly for its consideration at its meeting in Los Angeles last month. With hardly a discernible dissenting vote the "Resolution In Support Of The Retention Of The Cabinet-Level Department Of Education" was passed. It has now become the official position of one of the largest and most prestigious bipartisan organizations of urban elected officials in the world.

The difference between the NLC handling of the resolution and the Council's handling of the resolution is that in the case of the NLC, members were willing and able to process substance rather than adhere slavishly to an outdated Presidential position. They did not yield to the convenience and temptation of substituting a three-year old party position for their own logic. The Republicans felt philosophically secure enough to question a Presidential initiative when it seemed to be going contrary to reason and the national interest. They did not see disagreement on a specific position on which the President himself is now apparently soft as being an abdication of broader Republican principles.

For those who might suggest that there is a difference in the approach and response of the two bodies because they are at radically different places along the political continuum—too far to the left, too far to the right, too far to the center—I would say that they are grasping at an intellectual and political rationale which is not there. Were the difference really philosophical then there would be need to reexamine our historical role with the NLC. If there is philosophical incompatibility then there is a need to reassess the level of involvement of this Council and how and why Indianapolis has contributed two presidents to the NLC in less than a decade.

The President's New Federalism and the economic program which is a major cornerstone represents one of the most far reaching socio-economic experiments of our time. Beyond agreement on this basic fact, however, the economists, political theorists, politicians and sociologists find little to agree on. To take one of the fundamental principles of the New Federalism experiment, i.e., less government involvement, and apply it indiscriminately to all facets of American life is both foolish and intellectually irresponsible.

History may record our President as one of the bravest, most innovative and far-sighted statesman of our time. On the other hand, it may see him as a California governor who never quite graduated to the responsibilities of national office. Until these assessments are made with some degree of certainty, we all have the responsibility to make our own evaluations and to act accordingly—being aware of the political contest but not being totally governed by it.
