

REVISED LIST OF INDIANA PLANT RUSTS.

BY J. C. ARTHUR.

Five years ago a list of the plant rusts of Indiana was prepared, and printed in the Proceedings for 1898, to show not only how many and what species occur within the State, but the application of the revised nomenclature, to which great attention has been directed within the last decade. At that time the writer had made little study of the basis for the generic names, but accepted largely the conclusions announced by Kuntze in his Revisio generum plantarum. Since the presentation of the list, two other papers have been brought before the Academy by the writer, discussing the status of the genus names Puccinia and Gymnosporangium, the only considerable points in controversy touched by the Indiana list.

In order to embody the latest conclusions and reaffirm those remaining unchanged, as well as to correct a few errors and add the species brought to light since that list was issued, the writer presents herewith a revised list of the Indiana plant rusts. It is given in the latest nomenclature to familiarize the members of the Academy with this phase of scientific movement. It is not a nomenclature that can be generally used at present, for the reason that no standard works of reference are yet available employing the accepted names. But it does not materially detract from the usefulness of a local list, like the present one, and yet gives the reader a chance to see the direction in which the new movement is leading.

The present list, like the preceding one, does not include the unattached aecidia and uredo. Some thirteen of these that have been mentioned from time to time in the Proceedings of the Academy have been traced to their teliosporic connections since the last revised list was published, and are here included as autonomous species. Besides these, eleven species of rusts have been added to the State flora, having never been reported in any form before. The hosts reported in this list for the first time are recorded by month, county and collector. The specimens, on which these data are based, are in the herbarium at Purdue University. The references after the other hosts are to the page and year of the Proceedings of the Academy, where additional information can be found. The nomenclature for hosts is that of Britton and Brown's "Illustrated Flora of the Northern States and Canada."

The present list contains 105 species of plant rusts under sixteen genera, being an increase of more than 33 per cent. over the previous list of 1898, which contained 80 species under ten genera.
